RESEARCH EXPERIENCE

My doctoral research investigated the social structure and issues of child abuse and role of child education, women empowerment and child protection schemes to address this issue. The findings indicated that in the villages the system of child protection structure is not adequately framed. Low quality of education and low level of empowerment of women are basic reason for child labour. The research provides a new perspective to the issue of child labour and child abuse and has important social implications for addressing these issues in the society. During my research work I also published articles related to this issue.
